Mr. Pigkles and his wife has 12 children.

Hey Giraffiel, can you help babysitting my children this Saturday morning?
Me and my wife need to go to the bank.

I will have this, this, this and this! Also can I have more napkins? Thanks!

Mr. Pigkles's home was really crowded.

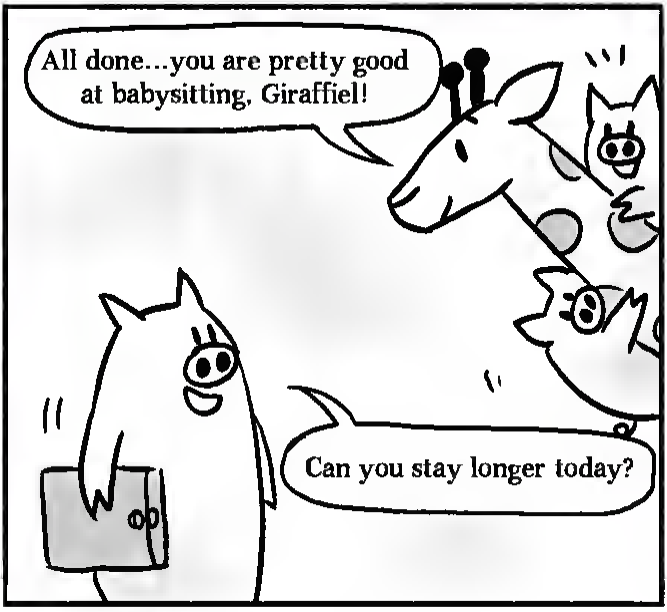
He always has something to grumble about.



So I spent the afternoon at Mr. Pigkles's house, and saw his life outside of work.

He put a lot of effort to run a big family,
and it's not easy.

Can you help babysit my kids while I work on the document?
Um, okay...
Come back here and finish your meal!
whee!
haha!..

He is mean about money and always penny-pinches on his spendings.

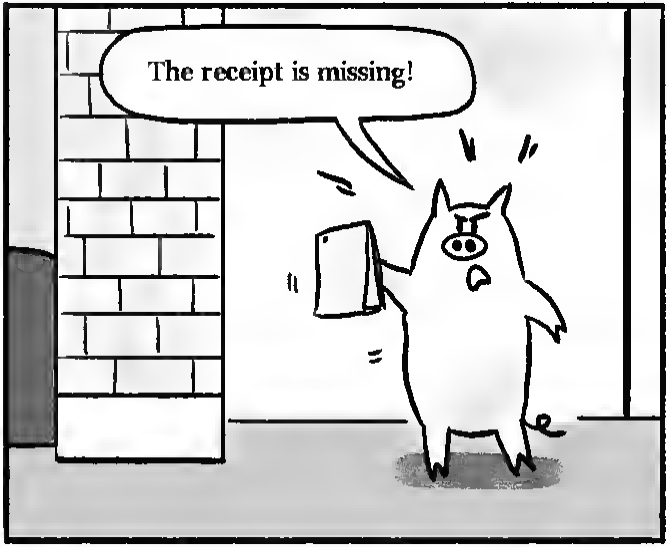
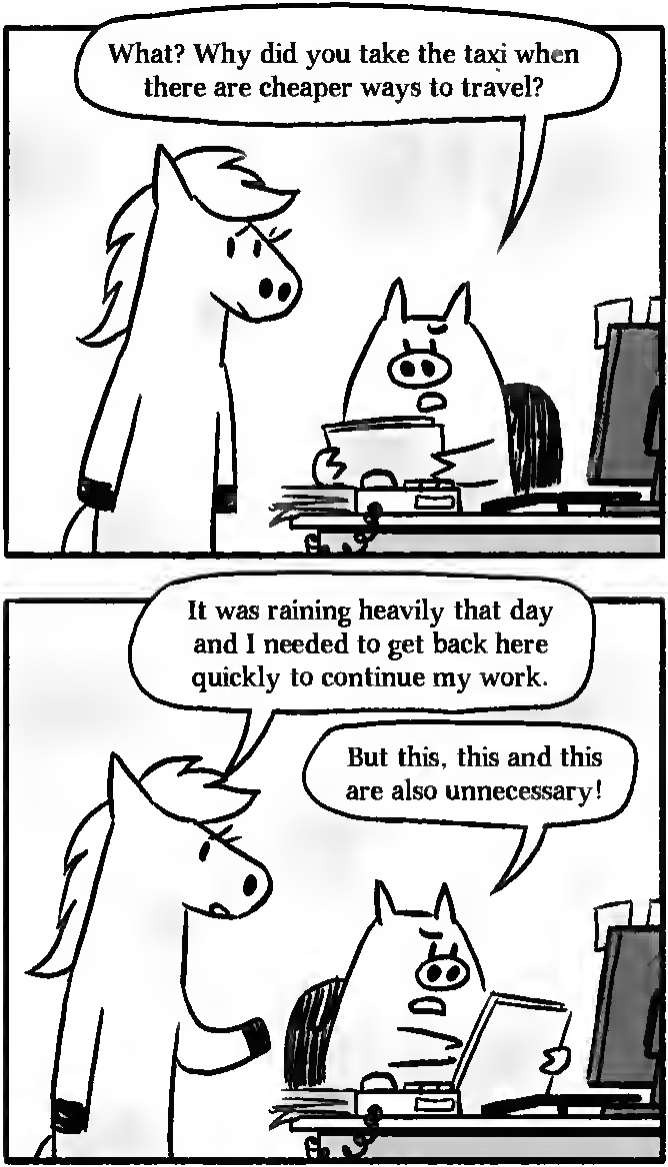
What?
Good morning, Mr. Pigkles! Here's the document for you...

Who sent me this document?!



The receipt is missing!



What? Why did you take the taxi when there are cheaper ways to travel?
It was raining heavily that day and I needed to get back here quickly to continue my work.
But this, this and this are also unnecessary!

He has to support both of their parents too.

I will send them money next week when I get my paycheck...
and we still have this much for buying food...and this much for....
Is it enough to cover next month?

Argh, I hate rainy days!
Why can't everyone put their umbrellas properly? It's already very crowded on the train and they get water everywhere...
There he goes again.

He is also greedy and always looking out for the best deal.

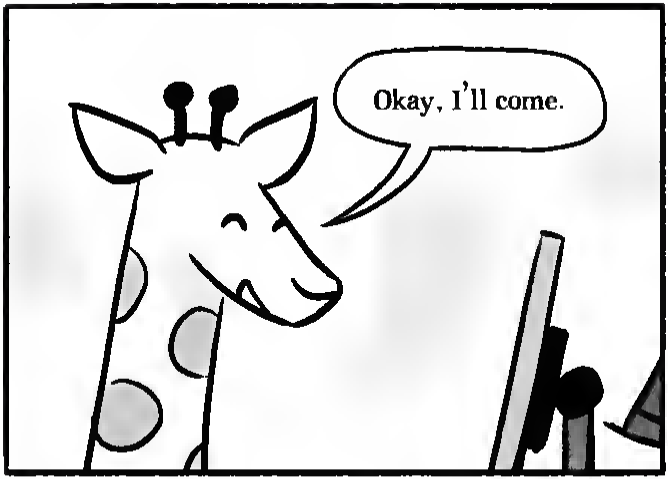
Mr. Pigkles is a manager at Roar Street Journal.

He is good at managing our company's finance,
but he is not very good at being happy.

Bye!
Thanks for helping!

He has to manage his 12 naughty piglets.



When you get to look from the other side,
you will understand more about that person.

Mr. Pigkles is not a very nice guy at the office.

Sometimes, I wonder if there is any reason behind.

Oh, I'm sorry, Mr. Pigkles! I forgot to attach it.
How do you think I can claim the money without the receipt?!

...What should I write this week?
Father's Day is coming soon...

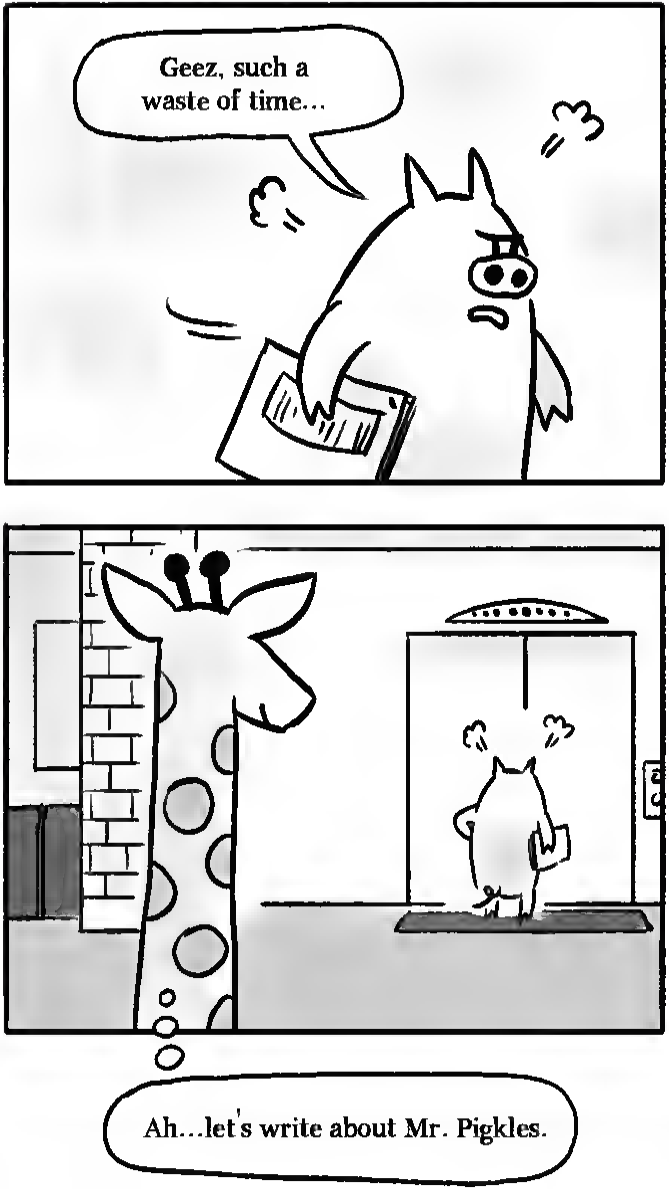
He has to help with housework and listen to his wife's grumblings.

I can't believe it! Peter ate all the cake in the fridge! And Priscilla couldn't sleep last night...and Penny he...
What? You haven't washed this round of sheets yet?
I'll do it right now, darling...

There was once when I had to deliver a finance document to Mr. Pigkles on a Saturday morning.

After my visit, I understood why Mr. Pigkles acts the way he does, because he is under a lot of pressure and responsibility.

I think there is always a reason behind someone's actions, and there is another side of them that you might not know about.



Geez, such a waste of time...
Ah...let's write about Mr. Pigkles.
